5. Summary of Work:

Key personnel at Program Support Associates, LLC (PSA) played a pivotal role in the successful execution of numerous high-profile projects under the supervision of such key personnel, who held the highest executive position within the company. This individual was responsible for overseeing a multidisciplinary team of architects and engineers, including mechanical, electrical, structural, civil, and cost engineers. The team delivered comprehensive design packages for over 300 projects, with an estimated total construction cost of $5 billion USD in the Republic of Korea.

One of the most significant undertakings was the historic Yongsan Relocation Plan, which involved relocating the United States Forces Korea (USFK) from Yongsan Garrison to Camp Humphreys. This relocation resulted in Camp Humphreys becoming the largest overseas military facility in the world<sup>1</sup>. The key personnel's leadership was instrumental in the successful completion of this complex project, which included critical infrastructure such as the 2nd Infantry Division (ID) Headquarters, Brian Allgood Hospital, and a Communications Center, among other confidential facilities essential to the readiness of USFK<sup>1</sup>.

Additionally, another key personnel handled all project accounting and internal project controls, ensuring that financial management and project oversight were conducted with the highest level of precision and accuracy and compliant with all Army, DCAA regulations as the company passed all organizational and project audits.

The technical expertise and strategic oversight provided by PSA's key personnel ensured that all projects met stringent design and construction standards. This included rigorous adherence to architectural and engineering principles, meticulous project controls, and comprehensive supervision of all phases of project execution. The team's efforts were characterized by a commitment to quality, safety, and efficiency, which were critical to the timely and successful completion of these high-stakes projects

6. Results:

Due to the dedicated efforts of key personnel at Program Support Associates, LLC (PSA), the relocation of Yongsan to Camp Humphreys was successfully completed. The leadership and expertise provided by PSA assets were instrumental in ensuring that the United States Forces Korea (USFK) met the deadlines established by the U.S. Department of State and the Department of Defense. This achievement was critical in fulfilling international agreements and commitments made by the U.S. government at the highest levels.

PSA's assets contributions were recognized as they were the only small business to win the $100 million Indefinite Delivery Indefinite Quantity (IDIQ) contract, competing against industry giants such as Jacobs and AECOM. This accomplishment underscores PSA's capability to deliver high-quality results on par with billion-dollar companies, thereby reinforcing the company's reputation and reliability in meeting stringent government requirements
